

Creative Community Workshop with Niamh Flynn

By Sage Gaffey Reddy

On Friday 16th January, Niamh Flynn visited our school and met with the “Creative Schools” Committee to do a workshop about building links with the wider community in Enfield. Following on from our school survey about creativity, we discussed how connecting with Enfield community was an important of the feedback received from the school survey. Niamh Flynn works with the National Youth Council of Ireland, and she is from and currently lives in Enfield. Niamh has set up a Youth Club for teenagers in Enfield. During the workshop, we did drawings about moments that we felt included and excluded. We also discussed creative projects for our school.
